Occupier Spotlight: National Grid

National Grid moved to Electric Works in March 2024, with the aim of building a Sheffield base for their newly developed Supply Chain Task Force project team, now known as The Construction Strategy team. The team were tasked with securing a competent supply chain to support the delivery of all National Grid's planned work over the next 5 years and beyond.

Electric Works was the workspace of choice for this business-critical team because of its central location and excellent transport links. Added to this, the friendly and professional reception team and bookable meeting rooms, made Electric Works the ideal base to host visiting suppliers and build those essential partner relationships.

Harriet Darby, Construction Strategy Team Coordinator, said, “The team were on the look-out for an office with great access to various transport modes - and Electric Works, situated between the main train and bus station in Sheffield, is one of the best connected workspaces in South Yorkshire. We also needed a range of flexible space options so we could accommodate the core team, expand when needed, and build essential relationships with regional suppliers.

“Electric Works really fitted the brief. We liked the modern look of the office, the communal spaces and especially liked sharing a space with so many other businesses. This gives the building a great community feel and helps us stay connected to what’s happening in and around the city and region. As an added bonus, the name ‘Electric Works’ felt pretty on brand for us!”

The 20-strong Sheffield team are looking to take more space within Electric Works later this year, as they continue to grow and build more regional supplier relationships.
